

Executive Summary

Over the past year, Procore has been partnering with the Associated General Contractors of America (AGC) and other industry associations to share aggregated Procore jobsite data. The index was born from high-demand requests from industry organizations and economists attempting to understand the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic on construction.

With that, Procore created the Construction Activity Index, which allows us to share insights that would otherwise be unavailable. These insights help industry organizations and economists analyze trends, debate potential courses of action, and decide on the best path forward.

This report utilizes aggregate jobsite activity from Procore and publicly available information to measure construction activity during the COVID-19 outbreak.

PROCORE

- CHAPTER 01

U.S. Construction Activity

We looked at activity within Procore to compare pre-COVID-19 hours as our benchmark for construction activity. We used an aggregated data subset of logged hours to help formulate a narrative about how construction is trending across the U.S. since the beginning of the pandemic.

Jobsites by the Numbers

U.S. overview of construction activity. Major dips in activity are primarily associated with COVID-19, holidays, and major weather events.

Safe Harbor Statement

This presentation utilizes aggregated jobsite activity from Procore as well as publicly available information to measure construction activity. We offer this data as objective information for analysts, economists, and government officials to make projections.

All data is benchmarked from the first week of March 2020. Months are averaged against this benchmark to give us construction activity in each area of reference. All data is not adjusted for seasonality.

The information in this presentation is for informational purposes only and not for the purpose of providing legal advice. You should contact your attorney to obtain advice with respect to any particular issue, including compliance with applicable laws and regulations.
